Paddle Trail Ale now available for sale in Oregon

BEND, Oregon (September 10, 2015) – Columbia Distributing, Crux Fermentation Project and Sierra Nevada Brewing Company unveiled their much-anticipated collaboration, Paddle Trail Ale, late last month at Bend's Pickin' & Paddlin' summer concert series. Accompanying the first thirst-quenching sip of the session IPA was a $30,000 check made out to the Bend Paddle Trail Alliance for its Whitewater Park project, slated to open in late September.

"What a great night!" said Jayson Bowerman, Bend Paddle Trail Alliance board member. "Our gratitude is beyond words. We've been fundraising for a long time now and this generous gift is like the river's strong current pulling us towards the finish line. On behalf of the entire board, community and visitors who will get so much enjoyment from the Bend Whitewater Park – thank you!"

Paddle Trail Ale was collaboratively brewed by Sierra Nevada and Crux and distributed throughout Oregon by Columbia Distributing. It's now available in select retailers across the state and $2 from every four-pack are donated to the Bend Paddle Trial Alliance.

About Crux Fermentation Project:

Crux Fermentation Project is located at the epicenter of Bend and at the crucial core of the brewing process. We've designed our 11,000-hectolitre brewery to allow for non-traditional brewing methods like decoction mashing, open fermentation, oak barrel aging, wild yeast strains and experimental hops. All our beer is bottled and labeled by hand in small batches right at the brewery. Brewmaster Larry Sidor is always in pursuit of the next great beer, whether by reinterpreting a classic style or abandoning it altogether. More at cruxfermentation.com
